Crowdfunding site Sharestates.com brings NY luxury condo development project to "THE 99%!"

Innovative real estate crowd-funding company with singular focus on making real estate investing affordable for the general public

April 8, 2014, Great Neck, New York -- Sharestates.com has exploded on to the real estate investment scene with breaking news of the launch of their interactive real estate crowd-funding platform focused on making real estate investing affordable for the general public.

Sharestates.com offers a user friendly platform which allows what was once reserved solely for the ultra-high net worth individual or institutional investor, to be opened to the general public. Now anyone with $100 and a desire to dabble in real estate can easily access secure real estate investment opportunities.

“Our system makes it possible for people to invest in real estate as easily as online shopping,” explains Allen Shayanfekr, Principal, Sharestates.com. “We’re here to revolutionize the way you invest in real estate and bring it to 100% of the population, not just the 1%. The general public, the backbone of our country, can now have the same access to real estate as the professional community.”

The beauty of the Sharestates.com platform is in its relevancy to investors across the financial spectrum. Whether you’re a novice investor looking to dabble in real estate, a multi-million dollar corporation seeking serious investors or a deal maker looking for secured loans, Sharestates.com offers you a unique opportunity of participation.

In addition to the launch of the unique platform, Sharestates has received qualification from both the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) and the New York Attorney General’s (“NYAG”) office for its multi-million dollar luxury condominium development project to be built in the Lenox Hill section of Brooklyn, New York.

In addition to the qualification of the SEC and the NYAG on its first development project, Sharestates plans to offer an array of unique and pre-vetted real estate investment opportunities to the general public. These unique real estate investment opportunities will include Retail Centers, Residential Apartment Buildings, Commercial Buildings, as well as Triple Net Leased Properties.

The easy to use platform offers constant tracking of investments, ongoing reviews, user updates and annual financial statements, which give investors at every level invaluable peace of mind.
