

The unERP: ERP Efficiencies without the Pain

IT leaders and all levels of corporate management praise the merits of ERP information systems. However, they also share in the reality that ERP integration is not only time-consuming and expensive, but also confusing, difficult to administer, and a pain to maintain once integration efforts are complete. Common evils of traditional ERP systems include the inability to easily diversify corporate activities or direction, and the fact that upgrades tend to be costly and disruptive — so disruptive that many corporations simply choose to ignore them.

iNfinite Answers, the UN-ERP system, does away with the need for traditional modules that cause integration and maintenance headaches, making ERP efficiencies truly achievable.

Transform ERP Complexity to Serene Simplicity

3B Dataservices excels at eliminating the pain of ERP integration on the IBM i by transforming ERP's traditional complexity into the simplicity of a truly seamless information database. With an innovative DB2 database at its core, iNfinite Answers gives you infinite potential to easily extend or modify functionality as required.

No more worries about massive upgrades. Simply upgrade a function, not the entire system, so upgrades tend to be non-disruptive and easy on the pocket.
