Therapy in Transition (TITO), which recently put together an Expert Panel to expand its services, has brought on board a three-person team from Peaceful Media as the organization's Social Media/Internet Presence Coaching Experts.

Wilsonville, OR – {April 12, 2010} Therapy in Transition is pleased to announce the staff of Peaceful Media has joined its Expert Panel team as the organization's Social Media/Internet Presence Coaching experts. Peaceful Media's team is comprised of Lawrence Duncan, Lacy Kirkland and Jason Alan Miller.

Each team member takes a different role to help clients shape the world into a more beautiful place to live via artistry that helps facilitate their message to a global audience seeking to evolve.

Peaceful Media is a boutique web and brand development firm that handles client's needs in the wide world of the Web. Together they have over a decade of experience in everything from simple brochure sites to Wordpress blogs to Drupal content management systems to eCommerce portals to custom web apps that do anything and everything you want to do online.

Miller started Peaceful Media in 2008 and quickly found his plate full with phenomenal clients who were all doing big, positive things in the world. Spiritual teachers and counselors, relationship guides, life coaches and high-consciousness consultants loved the way Jason's design work matched their inspired, loving messages, and he soon hired Kirkland, a Life Coach and communications expert, to help develop deeper relationships with clients. Duncan, a technology expert and photographer, rounds out the team.

Karen Kleinwort, Founder of Therapy in Transition said, "Peaceful Media did an outstanding creation and design for our own site; their work is truly reflective of our intentions. When we decided to expand the panel to include web presence they were the obvious choice. Jason, Lacy and Lawrence continue to play an instrumental role in the launch of so many dreams including my own."
