Press Release

In Honor of Labor Day AboutJobs.com is Waiving Job Posting Fees for Employers Across Its Network of Employment Web Sites

In a continually tough economy AboutJobs.com wants to do its part to bring more employment listings to job seekers struggling to find work.

Sagamore Beach, MA, September 2, 2011: This Labor Day AboutJobs.com is waiving job posting fees through the end of October to qualifying employers across each of its niche career Web Sites.

Co-Founder Jeff Allen says “With so many job seekers struggling to find work over the past few years during the recession, AboutJobs.com, Inc. wants to do its part this Labor Day to encourage employers and small businesses to put a wide range of their job openings online. With this initiative we aim to provide job seekers greater access to listings from employers who may not typically have the resources to pay hefty fees to use online job boards.”

From September 6th, 2011 through October 31st, 2011 employers and recruiters may post industry-specific job listings free of all charges and fees on appropriate AboutJobs.com Network career sites by visiting www.aboutjobs.com/LaborDay. Employers may also set up general company profiles that link to job postings that they host on their own Web Sites.

About AboutJobs.com Inc.: AboutJobs.com, which launched its first sites SummerJobs.com and OverseasJobs.com in 1997, specializes in helping employers reach candidates for specialized positions in several different industry sectors. During the current recession AboutJobs.com has seen an increased demand from job seekers looking for jobs out of their home markets, where local jobs have often been scarce. Now more than ever job seekers are exploring positions in new locations and are willing to relocate, spend a season working away from home or to transition to a career abroad.

Aboutjobs.com, Inc. sites include the multi-industry job board AboutJobs.com as well as the specialized sites InternationalJobs.com, OverseasJobs.com, ResortJobs.com, SummerJobs.com, SeasonalJobs.com, and the always free internship site InternJobs.com.
