Growing Truckload Operations Prompts Important Promotion at Corporate Traffic

Jacksonville, Fla. – Corporate Traffic, an international third party logistics provider, has promoted truckload transportation expert Dan Zyski to Truckload Team Manager. Increased demand for truckload transportation among customers and expansion of the company's truckload operations have necessitated a higher level of management in this division, and Dan's experience and team-building approach positioned him best to assume the responsibility of managing Corporate Traffic's Truckload Team 1.

"Truckload has been a growing portion of our business during the past few years, and we have had to realign our resources to accommodate a higher demand for proposals and logistics management," said Craig Cline, Vice President of Truckload Operations with Corporate Traffic. "Dan has built excellent relationships with our Team 1 members, our customers, and our carriers and vendors. We are confident that Dan will help ensure the most efficient operations among his team and continue to grow this part of our business."

In his new role as Truckload Team Manager, Dan ensures team performance standards, as well as individual performance standards, are maintained and improved to meet and exceed customer needs. In addition to managing and mentoring the operations team, he also resolves any employee, carrier, customer or driver issues should they arise. Dan continues to coordinate daily freight operations with customers and carriers – including Corporate Traffic's own fleet and the company's contract carriers – while also being responsible for truckload business development. Dan has been with Corporate Traffic for two years and in the logistics industry for five years.

"Truckload operations can be very complex and require a high attention to detail to ensure efficiency, which is why I enjoy being a resource for our customers and developing a truckload plan for each that exceeds their goals and expectations for shipments," said Dan. "Ensuring safe, reliable and efficient transportation is a passion of mine, and I believe we have the best team possible to deliver on our customers' truckload needs. I am excited about my new role."

Born and raised in Ponte Vedra Beach, Zyski graduated from Syracuse University with dual degrees in supply-chain management and marketing. In his free time, he enjoys northeast Florida living—fishing, sporting clay shooting, and spending time with family and friends.
