How to Get Rid of Lice?

We promote a 3-step process to get rid of lice.

- 1) Kill live lice
- 2) Check for and remove all nits
- 3) Clean your environment

Most over-the-counter treatments contain TOXIC CHEMICALS that kill lice but NOT NITS. Additionally, many adult lice have become resistant to the chemicals that are contained in these shampoos, making them completely useless.

Head Lice Prevention

Head lice is spread by head-to-head contact or coming into contact with certain personal items such as hair brushes and accessories, hats, helmets, etc.

Routine screenings at school and at home can prevent large outbreaks.

Signs of Lice

- Persistent itching, especially at night
- Finding nits on the hair. (Hint: If you can blow it or shake it off, it is not a nit)
- Catching a glimpse of a bug (louse) in the hair

What are Lice & Nits?

Lice are small grayish/white insects that lay an average of 3-5 eggs (nits) per day. Nits are tiny eggs firmly attached to the hair shaft, usually about ¼ inch from the scalp.

Head Lice Misconceptions

"Head lice is found in hair that is not clean."

—Just the opposite is true. The cleaner the hair, the more they are attracted because it is easier to attach to non-oily hair.

"Lice jump/fly from head to head."

—Lice cannot jump or fly. They can only crawl (very quickly).

Girls with long hair are encouraged to wear their hair in a braid or pulled back.
