

Title: Calling all engines: Sextant France is launching a national recruitment campaign

Release date: 20/02/2013

About Sextant France

Sextant France is part of Sextant Properties, created in 2005 in London by two French individuals with a very clear goal in mind: to offer a selection of the best character properties for sale in France to clients from all over the world. They succeeded in doing so by developing partnerships with over 160 French estate agents. With almost 10 years experience in the United Kingdom, and offices in London and Paris, the company has developed and grown to become one of the most recognized brands on its market, thus offering a true competitive advantage. Their international dimension led their local sales agents to work with both international and French clients, making a true difference amongst other real estate networks. As a complement, Sextant Properties has launched its own independent representative's network in real estate: Sextant France. As a licensed French estate agency and a member of SNPI, Sextant France is a useful complement to the already existing network of Sextant Properties.

A French and international optimum exposure

Sextant France ensures a significant media exposure of their properties via their English website www.sextantproperties.com that brings together 12,000 properties and attracts 100,000 unique visitors a month, and via more than 1,000 French and international portals.

Right from the first contact until signing of sales agreement including appraisal and negotiations, Sextant agents follow their customers and guide them in every step to make sure sales run smoothly, quickly and efficiently. As a proof of quality and involvement towards their customers, they only work with professional representatives that have learned the inner working of the craft over the years.

Be part of Sextant France

Sextant France is currently launching a national recruitment campaign in the best corners of France. As a sales agent working with Sextant France, the role would be to create and maintain a high quality and relevant property portfolio, to help Sextant France clients find a property which meets their criteria and guide them through the sale process. The role offers a potential to earn a good salary, a call centre based in London providing regular leads from international buyers and sellers, optimum media exposure on French and international portals, a flexible working environment, and a support from the head quarter located in London.

If one needs more information or want to apply to become a sales agent, please contact Sextant at cv@sextantproperties.com or visit their brand new French website: www.sextantfrance.fr
