Mosio's True Two-Way Text Messaging™ Coverage

What is True Two-Way Text Messaging™?

Many mobile messaging companies claim that they have global text messaging capabilities. While it may be technically accurate, in many cases it requires the end user to text to a UK long code, incurring international text messaging fees, not the best user experience, especially after they get their bill.

Some text messaging companies also claim to have two-way text messaging, but their solutions fall short after Keyword Post >> Auto-Response. While Post and Reply is technically two way text messaging, it doesn't include conversational, engaging text messaging where staff can have an active "textchat" interaction with their customers, employees or mobile audience.

Mosio's True Two-Way Text Messaging™ enables organizations to deploy interactive textchat text messaging where the end user is sending and receiving text messages with a number in their country, minimizing the cost to them and our client.

Your staff login to your web-based Mosio dashboard, taking advantage of Mosio's time saving auto-responders, canned response/answer templates, collaboration-friendly features and our 800+ term "textspeak" translator to quickly translate unknown text messaging acronyms.
