

COMPANY BIO

Who: Wade Reed has served as President and Chief Executive Officer of Hannon Hydraulics since 1976. As a result of his strategic vision and under his leadership, the company has grown to become one of the world's largest and most experienced hydraulic equipment manufacturers and repair service providers.

What: Hannon Hydraulics has focused on building a strong team dedicated to one simple goal – crafting the very best high performance hydraulic systems. Because of the quality of our work, willingness to take on challenging custom projects and excellence in customer service, Hannon Hydraulics has become a global leader in complete hydraulic workovers and custom build solutions.

When: Founded in 1976

Where: Offices and production centers in Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. Partnerships in Singapore and Brisbane. Hannon Hydraulics has grown into a global company with crews working everywhere that the energy industry is found.

Why: Founder Wade Reed and his team originally built a name servicing the hydraulic systems needs of the steel and mining industries before moving into the offshore energy and land drilling sectors. The company has earned a reputation as a custom solutions provider for those difficult to tackle projects that others avoid. Hannon Hydraulics finds a way. Now the company is involved in hydraulics manufacturing, rebuild and custom solutions on five continents.

Learn more at HannonHydraulics.com.

HannonHydraulics is a proud sponsor of PESA.

COACH R.C. SLOCUM

R. C. Slocum is the winningest football coach in Texas A&M University's history with a career record of 123-47-2.

The 123 victories in his first 14 years ranks eighth all-time and puts him in the company of coaching legends such as Barry Switzer (137), Tom Osborne (137), Steve Spurrier (132), Joe Paterno (131), LaVell Edwards (129), Amos Alonzo Stagg (128), and Bud Wilkerson (124).

Slocum won six championships as head coach of the Aggies; three Southwest Conference titles, two Big 12 South Division titles, and the 1998 Big 12 Conference Championship. He was league Coach of the Year four times and was runner up for National Coach of the Year honors in 1994. His teams went to 11 bowl games. On ten occasions, the Aggies, under Slocum, finished ranked in the AP Top 25 and three times finished in the Top Ten. Slocum's winning percentage of .865 (44-6-2) was the best in league history besting the .797 percentage set by the legendary Darrel Royal of the University of Texas.

Slocum is a native of Orange, Texas where he was an All-District end at Stark High School. He attended college at McNeese State University in Lake Charles, Louisiana. There, he was a four year letterman and set school records for receiving as an end. Following his senior season he was named Most Valuable Lineman. Slocum received his undergraduate degree from McNeese and was a member of Blue Key National Honor Fraternity. He also received a Masters of Education Administration. In 2002, he was recognized as a Distinguished Alumnus and in 2003 he was inducted into the McNeese Athletic Hall of Fame.

In 1982, Slocum was named defensive coordinator at Texas A&M under new head coach Jackie Sherrill. Prior to the 1985 season, Slocum was promoted to Assistant Head Coach. That season the Aggies led the Southwestern Conference in defense and won the conference championship. The 1985 conference championship was the first of three straight championships and the foundation of the reckless style of defensive play that earned the Texas A&M defense the nickname of the "Wrecking Crew."

In 1989, R.C. Slocum was named head football coach at Texas A&M University. He coached in the East/West Shrine All Star game, the Japan Bowl, and the Hula Bowl. Additionally, he has been involved in many charities including the Children's Miracle Network, the Peaceable Kingdom Retreat for Children, the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, and the Special Olympics. Slocum has also served as a Trustee of the American Football Coaches Association and is currently the President of the American Football Coaches Foundation. Since 2002, he has served as a Special Advisor to the President of Texas A&M. In February 2006, Coach Slocum was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame.