

Logistics Plus Aviation Services Take Flight

New business development executive aims to expand presence in the U.S. and abroad

ERIE, PENNSYLVANIA, December 4, 2014 – Logistics Plus Inc., a worldwide provider of transportation and logistics services, has added industry veteran Harald Aamodt to lead aerospace and aviation business development efforts for the company.

Mr. Aamodt brings extensive aviation experience, as well as international sales, marketing and management experience where he has established strong relationships working with and for prominent companies such as Cummins Engine and General Electric. Working from the Logistics Plus global headquarters in Erie, Pennsylvania, Mr. Aamodt will support the company's continued growth and expansion of services within the aviation industry both in the U.S. and abroad.

"We understand the supply chain needs of aviation companies very well," says Yuriy Ostapyak, director of global operations at Logistics Plus. "With the addition of Harald, Logistics Plus continues its focus on fostering strong, long-term relationships with companies and suppliers within the aviation industry."

Logistics Plus aviation experience includes recent logistical coordination of Chinook helicopter components being shipped from the U.S. to India for final assembly by Boeing. The company also has a long-standing, on-site 4PL relationship with Lord Corporation, a major aerospace and defense supplier.

Companies interested in learning more about Logistics Plus services for the aerospace and aviation industry can contact Harald Aamodt at harald.aamodt@logisticsplus.net or they can call 814-440-3929.
