

JobforDrones CEO to speak at Drones Africa Summit in Johannesburg, South Africa

Miriam McNabb, the CEO of Jobfordrones and a contributing editor to DRONELIFE will be speaking next week at the Drones Africa Summit. The conference takes place on September 20-22nd at the Birchwood Hotel conference center in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Miriam joins a group of international speakers and panelists discussing the commercial drone industry. Her session will address the realities of drone delivery, a particularly appropriate topic for the continent that has been first to implement large scale delivery programs in Rwanda and now Tanzania.

Miriam is a frequent guest speaker in the US and internationally including AUVSI, one of the largest drone shows in the world. Miriam is an industry insider who will speak to the plans of companies such as Intel, Amazon, Google, and others as they race to incorporate drone technologies in the delivery of goods worldwide.

Jobfordrones is a worldwide marketplace that matches drone jobs with local providers in the US and abroad. DRONELIFE is media and financial company focused on the commercial application of drones.