

PRESS RELEASE: Announcing the launch of the world's first Transportation Security Leadership Forum

LONDON, 26 JUNE 2019

Transportation Security Leadership Forum – Innovation | Leadership | Security Re-Imagined

- New international conference and exhibition to address current and future security challenges for leaders in aviation, maritime and rail sectors;
- 29-30 October 2019, Croke Park, Dublin, Ireland.

Today sees the launch of a new global platform designed for senior leaders from government and industry to transform security across the aviation, maritime and rail sectors. International delegates will come together to share experiences and best practices, drive innovation, inspire leadership and create strategic engagement across all modes of transport.

Taking place at the Croke Park Conference Centre – the heart of Irish sport for over 100 years – in the vibrant city of Dublin on 29–30 October 2019, the two-day conference and exhibition will address the principal challenges affecting the security of our transport networks and our ability to travel and trade across international borders:

- Leadership: The vital role of leaders to inspire change in the 21st century;
- Developing a powerful security culture;
- Examining the threat landscape;
- Securing people and goods: Facilitating travel and trade;
- Driving innovation – Showcase of new technologies and approaches to deliver better security;
- Resilience and recovery;
- Ethics, privacy, and the value of smarter regulations and standards.

Designed with the support of an influential Advisory Board, the two-day programme will see more than 40 world-class speakers engage the audience with a mixture of keynote speeches, panel discussions, interviews, workshops, case studies and rapid-fire presentations to inspire change and challenge conventional thinking.

The Transportation Security Leadership Forum is the only event to bring together senior leaders, policy makers and industry professionals from all modes of transport to address current and future security challenges, learn from each other's experiences, and explore innovations to deliver better, safer, more secure transportation systems globally.

Conference Chair and TSL Forum Director, Matthew Finn, commented, 'From my career in transportation security over the past 25 years, it has become patently clear that there is a need to rethink and re-imagine how we deliver better security, develop a culture of leadership, and inspire innovation throughout the entire transportation security sector. To take that conversation forward, it's vital to include everyone involved in the safe, secure movement of passengers and cargo around the world. What's needed is a global forum for government and industry to come together to jointly examine security challenges and jointly create strategic responses to address them. That's why I am proud to invest in the creation of the Transportation Security Leadership Forum. It's our ambition for the Forum to become a truly global platform so we can learn from each other, build powerful networks, and inspire leadership and innovation to improve security at the border and across all modes of transport."

About the Transportation Security Leadership Forum

The Transportation Security Leadership Forum will be held 29–30 October 2019 at the iconic Croke Park Conference Centre, Dublin, Ireland.

Early booking rates apply for reservations made prior to 06 September 2019 – register at: www.tslforum.com/register

For more information, including exhibition and sponsorship opportunities, please visit:

www.tslforum.com/sponsor-exhibit

The Transportation Security Leadership Forum is organised by SEMCO Events Ltd, an innovative UK-based publishing and events company.

Contact:

Hannah Wells
Marketing Manager, TSL Forum
Email: hannah@tslforum.com
Tel: +44 7949 057006