

Not long ago in a land we all know, things were moving fast.

So fast that everyone stopped noticing the smell of fresh pancakes,

and the color green,

and even each other.

And it was in that moment
that a virus arrived.

of every country...

It visited every corner...

even though it wasn't invited.

And because it was so unexpected and unknown,
the world hit pause.

But the virus spread,

and stayed
home.

and people quickly
shut their doors

The world changed overnight.

Schools were closed.

Restaurants were emptied.

Birthday parties were postponed.
