

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ATLANTA - February 11, 2026 - Former 21-year Wall Street Executive Nichole Pointdujour to Speak on Preserving Professional Networks and Reclaiming Community at Black Enterprise's 20th Annual Women of Power Summit

Over the course of three months in 2025, more than 300,000 Black women lost their jobs.<sup>1</sup> Anticipating that many of these women will attend this year's 20th Annual Black Enterprise Women of Power Summit, The Master Connector Agency Founder and CEO, Nichole Pointdujour, will speak on how Black women can integrate women's networks into their personal and professional journeys for growth and resilience.

"Community is more than a support system; it's a strategy," says Pointdujour. "In this moment, reclaiming how we connect, support, and show up for one another professionally is essential. I'm honored to be part of this powerful conversation at such a landmark event."

Pointdujour is widely recognized for her ability to drive business growth, foster innovation, and cultivate partnerships that change the trajectory of organizations and communities alike. She will be a featured speaker at the upcoming 20th Annual Black Enterprise Women of Power Summit taking place March 11-15, 2026, in Las Vegas, NV.

On Friday, March 13th, Pointdujour will explore the importance of Black women intentionally rebuilding and sustaining professional communities in an increasingly fragmented, digital-first world. She will offer actionable strategies to cultivate authentic professional networks that drive long-term growth, collaboration, and collective success. Pointdujour's session, Reclaiming Community: Preserve Your Professional Network, is designed to equip attendees with practical tools to strengthen professional relationships, protect social capital, and foster meaningful connections that extend beyond transactional networking.

Pointdujour will also be featured in the Summit's Author's Corner, where attendees can purchase a copy of her bestselling book, The Master Connector: The Ultimate Guide to Building Impactful Connections for Life and Business Success.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary, the Black Enterprise Women of Power Summit will be held March 11-15, 2026, in Las Vegas, NV, bringing together thousands of influential women leaders, executives, entrepreneurs, and change-makers from across the country to engage with keynote conversations, workshops, and networking experiences led by some of today's most influential women. This milestone year underscores the Summit's continued commitment to elevating Black women's voices and leadership at every level.
